Claude Doucet
Secretary General
Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission
Gatineau QC, K1A 0N2

Dear Mr. Doucet,

Re: Part 1 Application of TekSavvy Solutions Inc. to Address Undue Preferences Arising from Off-Tariff Agreements, pursuant to Section 27(2) of the Telecommunications Act (CRTC File 8662-T117-202300268) – Intervention of OpenMedia Engagement Network

Introduction

1. OpenMedia is a community-driven organization that works to keep the Internet open, affordable, and surveillance-free. We strongly urge the CRTC to leverage the opportunity presented by the TekSavvy application to launch an expeditious and thorough review of Canada's wholesale access regime and grant final relief for wholesale-based competitors. We also urge the CRTC to expeditiously investigate and address the unduly preferential off-tariff agreements (OTAs) described in the TekSavvy Application, as well conduct a review of the framework for OTAs in general.

2. If the Commission cannot conduct a robust review of the wholesale access regime and grant final relief for wholesale-based competitors on an accelerated timeline, then we urge the Commission to provide one of the following alternatives until final relief is granted: expeditious interim relief in the form of significantly lower tariffed wholesale high-speed access (HSA) rates, or ordering the Rogers-Vidéotron OTA rates to be made available on an interim basis to all wholesale-based competitors as requested by the TekSavvy Application.

Repairing Canada's dysfunctional wholesale access system is in the consumer interest

3. Ensuring that wholesale-based competitors are able to viably compete under the wholesale access regime is in the best interest of consumers, a priority identified by Innovation, Science and Economic Development (ISED) in the current policy direction to the CRTC on competition, affordability, consumer rights and universal access.¹ Independent wholesale-based providers play a critical role in the retail market, including: offering consumers more affordable services, presenting an alternative choice to incumbents,² and driving down market prices for telecommunications services through competitive pressure.

4. At present, wholesale-based providers writ large are struggling to remain in business. In the past year alone, incumbents have acquired independent providers at an alarming rate, sparking concerns over the future of telecommunications competition and affordability in Canada. At minimum, we are aware of 6 acquisitions that are public knowledge in addition to the pending Rogers-Shaw deal; since the beginning of 2022, Telus has acquired Start.ca and Altima, Bell has acquired EBOX and Distributel, Vidéotron has acquired VMedia, Cogeco Connexion has acquired Oxio, and Rogers is nearing the successful close of its deal to purchase Shaw.^{3,4,5,6,7,8}

5. This degradation of competition will continue so long as the CRTC's tariffed wholesale HSA rates remain too high, and the regime fails to facilitate tariffed access to fibre-to-the-premises (FTTP) technology — both primary contributors to the present dysfunction in Canada's wholesale regime.⁹

Wholesale HSA rates

6. Canada has experienced documented increases to home Internet pricing since the failure to implement the CRTC's 2019 tariffed wholesale HSA rates¹⁰. In 2021, the CRTC discarded years of its own analysis to reinstate the interim 2016 rates — rates that were purposefully set too high to begin with pending further analysis by the Commission, and were never meant to be permanent.^{11,12} Telecom Decision 2021-181 led to an immediate contraction in independent provider activity and price competitiveness.¹³ These independent providers, having initially passed on the savings of Telecom Order 2019-288 to their customers, had no choice but to start increasing their retail prices yet again; this was to account for both the higher operating costs of more expensive rates, as well as the substantial losses from the back pay from incumbents they would never receive due to Telecom Decision 2021-181.¹⁴ Coinciding with the wholesale HSA rates reversal, a recent report released by Innovation, Science and Economic Development (ISED) showed that prices increased in 2021 across nearly every tier of home Internet service.^{15,16}

7. The OpenMedia community, which comprises nearly 300,000 people in Canada, have strongly advocated for a return to lower wholesale HSA rates because of the significant impact our destabilized wholesale regime has had on telecom affordability. In 2021, nearly 32,000 OpenMedia community members signed a petition asking the federal government to rescind CRTC Telecom Decision 2021-181, and reinstate the rates set by Telecom Order 2019-288 (please see Appendix A for full petition text and signatures). Since the August 15, 2020 Order in Council decision concerning Telecom Order 2019-288,¹⁷ over 100,000 actions have been taken by people in Canada via OpenMedia to support lower HSA rates. During that same period, we have received nearly 6,000 unique comments from our community members expressing their immediate need for improved telecom affordability, competition, choice, and accessibility (please see Appendix B for exemplary comments).

Wholesale FTTP access

8. Ensuring robust freedom of choice for consumers necessitates that the fastest Internet services are available from a wide variety of providers at affordable prices. Due to the high costs of fibre deployment, the only logical and sustainable approach to achieving this is through facilitating access to FTTP technology for wholesale-based providers. However, the CRTC's 2015 decision¹⁸ to mandate wholesale access to incumbents' fibre networks for independent providers has not translated to any meaningful service provided to people in Canada to this day. Presently, there is nowhere in the country where consumers can subscribe to fibre Internet from independent providers through the wholesale access regime. As such, people in Canada today are paying inflated retail prices for fibre connectivity due to incumbents' monopoly over FTTP services.

Unduly preferential off-tariff agreements

9. Having established the critical relationship between a functional wholesale access regime and the consumer interest, it stands to reason that undermining wholesale-based competitors and the function of the wholesale access regime overall through unduly preferential OTAs is against the best interest of consumers.

10. By enabling a dysfunctional wholesale access system, the Commission has empowered incumbents to pick and choose which wholesale-based providers will remain viable; this is a tiered system where certain providers receive preferential rates and access to networks when advantageous to incumbents' market position, while independents who present competitive threats to incumbents are frozen out. Wholesale-based providers who are not part of OTAs with incumbents are at a significant disadvantage in the market, with no reasonable action they can take to improve their own competitive edge.

11. The existence of the Rogers-Vidéotron OTA itself as described in the TekSavvy Application demonstrates the intolerable conditions placed upon wholesale-based providers by the CRTC's current tariffed rates. If Vidéotron requires lower, off-tariff wholesale access rates from Rogers in order to be competitive, the CRTC's tariffed rates are therefore inflated, unfavorable, and disadvantageous to independent wholesale-based providers.

Conclusion

12. In conclusion, OpenMedia strongly urges the Commission to act in the consumer interest by immediately and expeditiously initiating a careful review of Canada's wholesale access regime, and granting final relief for wholesale-based competitors. Promoting vigorous services-based competition, greater consumer choice, and affordably-priced Internet services are of the utmost importance — and inextricable from the need for a functional wholesale access regime. The CRTC's tariffed wholesale HSA rates remain too high, and the regime continues to fail to facilitate tariffed access to FTTP technology for wholesale-based providers. These circumstances have harmed the viability of independent wholesale-based providers and are causing a sharp decline in telecommunications competition in Canada that must be curbed immediately to prevent further damage. In addition, the Commission should immediately investigate and address the unduly preferential OTAs by Bell and Rogers identified in the TekSavvy Application as well as review the OTA framework in general. Combined with an intolerable and dysfunctional wholesale access regime, unduly preferential OTAs are deeply harmful to wholesale-based providers and undermine their competitive edge. By doing so, the Commission will be acting in accordance with the final policy direction from ISED that clearly asks the CRTC, in conjunction with acting in the consumer interest, to “maintain a regulatory framework mandating the provision – at just and reasonable rates – of wholesale services for fixed Internet; monitor the effectiveness of the framework; and adjust the framework as necessary and in a timely manner, including by making proactive adjustments.”¹⁹

Appendix A: Petition text and signatures, the OpenMedia community calls on Cabinet to immediately overturn the CRTC's May 27 decision on Internet wholesale rates and permanently reinstate the lower 2019 rates.

PETITION TO FEDERAL CABINET:

We call on Cabinet to immediately overturn the CRTC's May 27 decision on Internet wholesale rates, and permanently reinstate the lower 2019 rates.

The CRTC's decision to raise wholesale rates not only completely abandons its own findings, but is in direct conflict with the government's 2019 policy direction, which prioritized affordability and consumer interests. It also completely undermines the federal government's promises to lower the price of telecom services in Canada.

Under CRTC Chair Ian Scott, the regulator has sided with corporate interests over that of Canadians time and again. The CRTC's job is to regulate Big Telecom – not to coddle them. You must investigate why the CRTC is failing to act on your 2019 policy direction, and has completely abandoned Canadians in favour of granting Big Telecom's every whim.

Your government is at a crossroads: It can either sit by and do nothing, siding with Big Telecom and the CRTC, or it can reinstate the lower 2019 rates, siding with Canadian Internet users and affordable Internet access.

We hope you'll choose us.

Sincerely,

#	Supporter First Name	Comment	Demographic
1	Marie-Anne	We've seen how reducing competition increases customer costs. Internet & wireless costs are already prohibitively high... folks and families who are already struggling will not be able to afford internet services which are crucial in these times. Since I am on a fixed income & live in a rural location, my internet costs are already significant & my options very limited. Please consider the customers & not just shareholders when making final decisions...	Rural/remote
2	Andre	The lack of market competition will result in higher prices and we'll be forced to terminate our services. Living in a rural setting, we only have two provider options - please don't make it one.	Rural/remote
3	Ryan	Hi, my wife and I have 4 kids spanning the ages of 2-13. I run a mobile rehab business that provides home care for my patients as well as remote help when needed. I rely heavily on cellular data while I'm with my patients and require a fair amount of bandwidth at home for medical files and my professional obligations. 3 of my 4 children require high speed internet for their online classes (the ongoing pandemic has made online school the only reliable option. Having fewer communications service providers isn't beneficial, it only forces those of us who rely on these services to continue to be forced to pay some of the highest telecom prices in the world. It's ridiculous that in 2021 our country still hasn't figured out that corporate interests are never one and the same as public interests. Short sighted decisions aren't the answer, and relying on corporations to "do the right thing" is beyond naive. Please protect our future.
4	Kar Yan	Please do not allow the Rogers-Shaw deal to do through. There is already a lack of competition. The recent CRTC decision that increased wholesale rates of high speed internet which also made it more difficult for competition in this sector, has directly increased the cost of our family's internet by $240/year! It is not good to allow the creation of mega companies that have so much control and power. Stop Rogers from buying Shaw.
5	Michael	Stop coddling one of the most protected sectors in the world. There has been enough consolidation and regulators have not done enough to protect consumer or encourage a vibrant ecosystem. The obvious outcome will be more cost for less service while only a small portion of already powerful Canadians will benefit.
6	Eva	My internet and Tv bill is already very high. I'm concerned that it will get completely unaffordable.	Senior
7	Jonathan	When will we the people see our government take any action to protect us from corporate interest. It's very clear that we're living in times in which corporations have more pull then the people with the government. This isn't right, it's time we start making better decisions, decisions that help Canadians.
8	Peter	My cell phone bills are higher than my heat and hydro combined now. What will happen when there is even less competition ? We already pay more than the US in this country and since we are in an economy that is computer driven it makes no sense to make it hard for the average person to have affordable access to very things that can make us more competitive as a country . Self regulation in these important industries is akin to putting the fox in charge of the chicken coup and when I see things like BC giving power to the fossil fuel regulator to allow oil companies to prolong the time they are given to clean up decommissioned wells I smell corruption and legalized bribery in the form of lobbying . What are we going to see here ? Protection for Canadians or another fox in charge of the chicken coup ?	Senior,Rural/remote, Indigenous (First Nations, Métis, Inuit)
9	Caitlin	We have the worst telecommunication prices in the world. We need to be promoting diversity and competition, not allowing the takeover and consolidation. Especially from a company that is extremely unstable as shown by their recent public bickering. Canada deserves better. Give us better.
10	Cameron	Communications and telecommunications services are TOO expensive in Canada. Here in Canada, we pay the most and receive the least. Competition helps rectify this problem. A Shaw-Rogers merger is completely unacceptable! We need MORE competition not LESS! Of course, big telecom hates this idea. They want to continually gouge us and give us poor service. Step Up Canada! Be a leader! Lets put this on our priority list.
11	Benjamin	I'm more concerned about accessibility for others - allowing Rogers and Big Telecom to continue to monopolize our access to the internet will only keep us behind.
12	Richard	In addition to the further burden on my family budget, I do not welcome the further fodder being fed to a corporate giant, already limiting the freedoms available in our country, which continue to be under a greater and greater threat, as we see the ongoing bloating in its strangling effect on our right to choose.	Rural/remote
13	Glenn	We have ridiculously high cell phone, internet and TV plans precisely because we have so little competition. The major companies that provide these services provide similar plans for these services at similar inflated prices because they are colluding with each other. We need real competition. Having one giant company buying out another giant company is moving in the wrong direction.	Senior
14	Lyndee	I've experienced this situation too many times while living in the U.S. When large organizations combine, the loss of competition in the market place always hurts the end user. Canada already has a dismal competition problem when it comes to Internet and cell phone data. We have just four major telecommunication companies offering wireless services and prices continue to skyrocket under this minimal competition environment. We need more competition not less! After living in the U.S. for 24 years, I returned to Canada hoping for a better life for myself and my family than the downward spiral I experienced in the land of greed. This Rogers-Shaw deal is reminiscent of that downward spiral. Please stand up for those of us trying to make ends meet. You have an opportunity to do the right thing. Don't let greed take over Canada.	Low-income,Disabled
15	Graham	This is terrible for Canadians. We already pay some of the most expensive phone and internet prices in the developed world. This will further hurt my family and mean less food on the table for them. We need more competition, not less.	Rural/remote
16	Brad	Monopoly and oligopoly have always harmed society. The fact that our governments continue to tolerate these business structures little encourages public confidence in democracy.	Senior
17	George	The telecom market in Canada is an oligopoly, and we are forced to pay some of the highest prices in the world. Turning it into a monopoly is a recipe for disaster. I rely on the Liberal Government to protect the public interest and am ready to vote for another party in the next elections if it doesn't. Thank you!
18	Russ	There is very little competition as it is. These companies are protected from foreign competition, and what do they give us in return? The highest cell and Internet bills in the world. Cheaper rates are neither advertised nor easy to obtain. While I don't currently use Shaw, I was planning to move to Freedom when my phone contract expired, except the pending sale of Shaw to a company that I will not do business with (Rogers). The worst is the surprises that these companies seem to continue with including hidden and outrageous overcharges like the $100 Telus charged my wife's phone for a few texts sent to Florida or the fact that the cost of my phone had been removed from the price quoted me for my plan (with no indication that was the case). I found out when my second month's bill was still in the $100 range. For that kind of money, most carriers in other countries provide massive amounts of data and much faster service (I've never seen my phone give me more than 3G service).	Senior
19	Wayne	I feel the Rogers-Shaw deal will make my communications bill more expensive. I will have to lessen other expenses to keep afloat.	Senior,Rural/remote

20	Yurii	Rogers is such a bad provider. Starting from the service, ending with the quality of the Internet. I connected my Rogers home internet, because Bell had some troubles and they could not connect in time, and I needed the Internet to work. Their speed is 500Mb/25Mb. 25Mb for unloading is about the standard of Ukraine in 2004. How can I even sell such a thing. Service is bad, they've sent one master, he said that we needed a senior master, told us the date and time when he would come. No one came at the appointed time because that idiot master did not enter the date in the schedule. The whole connection took 2 weeks, despite the fact that Rogers' head office is located 150 meters from me. Well, the quality of the Internet is even worse than service. For 2 weeks of use, the speed dropped 3 or 4 times from 500 to 50 MB (10 times). For no reason. Bell is certainly much better in terms of quality, fiber-optic internet is cool (they are promoting this as the main feature in 2021 :)). But prices in Canada are unreasonably high. The government needs to do something about the Big Three (Bell and Telus), not just Rogers. Otherwise poor internet will slow down development of other fields that require internet.	Low-income,Newcomer
21	Steve	It is quite obvious that reducing the amount of competition means higher prices. The one area Shaw was good at was service. Rogers was never as good. So we know for sure that service (good service for issues) will decrease. Just look at the family feud going on! They can be filthy rich but that will never be enough! They will want to make even more money.	Senior
22	William	I am 86 years old, living on a pension, and can't afford rise in prices of my Shaw services. Please stop this take-over. It is bound to make it difficult or impossible for me to afford. I have already had to give up a lot of extras that fulfill my life. Please!	Low-income,Senior
23	Johan	I feel that if the Rogers-Shaw buyout and / or merger is granted by the bureau that this will be a disastrous thin edge of the wedge of future corporate takeovers which will leave all Canadians with less choice in internet and phone services. The result of course is that the cost of all phone and internet services will continue to rise. Canadians are already paying some of the highest costs for these services in the world today and these costs need to be reduced, not increased. To the members of the Competition Bureau: Please understand that you may have an income which makes all your necessary wireless services quite affordable and you may also have wireless services in your offices which are paid by taxpayer funds, so constant increases in prices for these services, (usually without increases in quality or quantity of the product) may not personally affect you or your families. For most Canadians though, these mergers and acquisitions have a direct and serious affect on whether we can afford to effectively communicate with each other and whether we can keep our businesses going in the most cost affective and economically efficient manner. Something that coming out of a pandemic is vital to the future of all Canadians.	Low-income,Senior
24	Donna Georgina	I am a senior who lives only on a small, fixed Government pension...Forget the term low income, I am POOR. I can't afford a cell phone and an expensive plan; I don't need one or want one, anyway, but as with the computer am being forced into more expense because there are certain things that won't work if you have a land-line. I can barely afford the cost of internet and have had to upgrade to an expensive plan so that my computer works. I struggle to even afford a computer. Why not scale the costs or lower them so that everybody can afford to live as this technology nightmare is forced upon us? Your greed for money is the only answer I can come up with. I doubt that any of you cares whether we starve ourselves to afford what is forced upon us, supposedly for our convenience and a better quality of life. What a joke!!!! Oh Canada!!! 25	Christine	I am concerned that a lack of choice in telecommunication providers will increase already very high costs. This is not for the betterment of Canada. The only ones who will benefit is big telecom.
26	William	I have many friends in this community who are worse off than me. Our local government is currently expanding the affordable housing units for the worse off. I have been spending up to $9800.00 per year on charities across Canada. No doubt other good people are doing the same. But you and I are talking about people who barely afford the houses they live in. They need to have an affordable cell phone and internet as well. Why would you think that we should allow the richest among us to get even richer? You surely have seen the several recent polls, that were published with the recent federal election, showing that 80% or 90% of Canadians are in favour of taxing the rich?	Senior
27	Alice	I and my spouse have been concerned for many years about the continuing high prices that we in Canada pay for cell phone and internet services. We are both retired but have part-time consulting businesses, and my spouse is developing a startup online business with two colleagues. Our communication costs are a damper on business activity, home budgets, and particularly our ability to travel to visit our grandchildren in Europe. I realize that this can be seen as a first world problem, but it's not at all clear to us why Canada needs to be so overcharged compared to other developed countries. PLEASE do not allow this merger to proceed, and also PLEASE address these costs through legislation and anti-competition action. Thank you.	Senior
28	Michael	The proposed acquisition of Shaw by Rogers brings no benefit to Canadian consumers. Canadian telcos enjoy a protected market yet remote communities are poorly served. Canadians are being gouged by the telecommunications providers. The proposed acquisition will reduce choice, result in job losses and given the share structure of Rogers, leave control of a large portion of the Canadian marketplace in the hands of the Rogers family. There is no benefit to Canadians who are paying for the acquisition through the inflated telecommunications costs.
29	Natalie	I am already concerned about the cost of my internet and cell phone, and reducing competition will only make this worse. Surely you can see that, I don't even understand why this is being considered. Like many other seniors, my income is limited, and my mobility is also limited. Not being able to get out and about easily, I am largely dependent on my cell and internet for entertainment, information, and social interaction. Please don't approve the Rogers purchase of Shaw. Shaw is currently my internet provider, so I'm feeling very vulnerable.	Low-income,Senior, Disabled
30	Ursula	Canada has one of the world's highest internet charges. By Rogers and Shaw amalgamating, there will be even less competition among the service providers. Consequently, the costs will be even higher for consumers.	Low-income,Senior
31	Floyd	Fewer tele-communications companies, means less competition, means higher prices and lower services... This is taught in every introductory economics course at any post-secondary educational institution. How come the CRTC does not know this? After all, its part of their job to know!!!	Low-income
32	Rylan	Less competition means less innovation and higher prices. This is proven out again and again south of the border where connectivity costs are so much lower. Additionally, less companies providing telecomm services opens the door to the curtailing of freedom of speech and expression through corporate means. What would happen if one day there was only 1 company that gave phone and internet to society, how could that society be manipulated or outright cut off for dissenting opinions etc?	Disabled
33	Guillaume	Allowing these mega mergers is a real threat to competition and affordable prices for Canadians. The government and other agencies created to protect Canadians has to protect its citizens from what could become monopolies. More companies means more competition and more choices. It has a real impact on cost, technology access, customer service and more. Do not allow this merger! Canadians are already paying more money for the same services than other countries. Please have the courage to do the right thing by protecting present and future customers by not allowing this dangerous merger. A concerned citizen. Thank you very much.

38	Lynne	We want and need choice, competition and innovative development among carriers, not monopolies, and price fixing and gouging among these large telecoms. There is also a danger of increased surveillance, collection of personal data and greater incursions into personal privacy as it will become easier put control mechanisms in place over larger numbers of people. In China, where I have lived and worked as a "foreign expert", these are features of the governing structures. Alternate views are not tolerated. This move by Rogers to secure more power and influence ultimately threatens civil rights, and the individual right to expect our votes to adhere to the values defined through our democratic institutions and rights legislation. 42	Steven	As a consumer, I am extremely concerned and disappointed at the limited choice that Canadians have for cell phone and internet. We are already forced to pay exorbitant prices for subpar service compared to the rest of the world and further reducing competition will only exacerbate those problems. 43	Rod	AS a long-time member of the Laurier Club, I am concerned that my government is failing to act to promote competition in the critical area of wireless communications. Income and wealth inequality are aggravated, and social cohesion threatened, by the absence of effective competition in the communications sector. The proposed takeover of Shaw by Rogers would be a merger dramatically antagonistic to the public interest, and lead to massive restraint of trade. The CRTC should not approve this takeover, and the Cabinet should over-rule their decision if they do. Rod Dobell, PhD (MIT)	Senior
44	Mary	Canadians deserve more choice when looking for internet, cell phone, cable providers-not less. I am tired of being told that more competition is coming in some distant future when in reality we always get less. Monopolies are bad in any industry and yet Canada keeps getting more of them. I have spent a large portion of the the last 18 months working from home. My students have also done the same and many of them cannot afford the rates Rogers and Bell demand. It's time for this to change now. Stop talking about the future and act now.
45	Marilyn	I want more choices in a more competitive environment for all my services.Large monopolies force people into situations where they pay more and have less. I would rather have more in pay less And have more money in my pocket to live comfortably. As a low income senior who's worked all my life and paid my taxes I don't want to have to make a choice between food and rent or give up TV or Internet or downgrade my phone.	Low-income,Senior
46	George	The internet is far more expensive in Canada vs most of the developed world; mergers make the internet cartel stronger and will increase the price of rather humdrum service.	Senior
47	Zack	Canadians pay the highest amounts for our internet, cable and cellular services on the planet. This is going to lessen the competition in the field adding to Roger's hegemony. 51	Elaine	Canadians don't need this corporate merger to happen. Canadians already pay some of the highest rates for cell phone, cable and internet access in the world while only having four companies to choose from at the moment. To push for this deal makes no sense. This is only a push to further corporate greed of a selected few over the needs of many. In a fair and democratic society we the people get to choose what service provider we use. Not you.
52	Timothy	Less competition in the Canadian Telecommunications sector isn't in the best interests of everyday Canadians in any way. Please allow us to have diversified suppliers and competition in the marketplace.
53	Michaela	With inflation as it is right now, I don't believe I will be able to afford higher phone and internet costs.	Indigenous (First Nations, Métis, Inuit)
54	Allan	This will be a disaster leading to higher prices and slower service. We need more carriers in Canada to increase competition and hopefully lower prices. Then maybe the consumer will get a fair break instead of CRTC always siding with the giants.	Senior
55	Desiree	I am a low-income, single parent, and sole caregiver to my low-income senior (and completely bedridden) mother. The money spent on supplies for her care are astronomical, and even the slightest rise in price on internet/phone will put our ability to buy the things she absolutely needs in jeopardy.	Low-income,Disabled
56	Bill	In these times with living expenses rising annually and wages not keeping up or not changing at all in some cases, the average middle class working Canadian cannot afford to have the competitive factor reduced. This puts Rogers in an even stronger position than they already are to raise internet and communication service fees. When the population of this country are weathering through lost jobs and reduced income it is not fair for huge corporations to increase their profits by purchasing smaller competitors and gaining monopoly control over the essential services we need today.	Senior
57	Sandra	These giant telecoms already have an avaricious share of the market. It is appalling what we in Canada pay for cell phones, internet and television. This merger (buyout) will only allow this situation to get worse. It isn't as if any of them have any demonstrated fairness in pricing to Canadians. I shudder to think of how lower income families get left behind. I am on a fixed income and already looking at ways to decrease my monthly bills But, I suppose it is about serving the oligarchy, which seems to be the end game these days.	Senior
58	Donald	If this sale is approved prices for phone internet and cable tv will increase and we will have one less competitor in the market place. I am 87 years old and find groceries, services, home repairs etc are steadily increasing, a twin pak of butter chicken sauce was 8 dollars at Cosco now 12.59 for the same. Pet food etc etc all are increasing. I am on pension and feeling the strain of steadily increasing prices. Once this Rogers buy out of Shaw cable is approved I am concerned all communication services will increase. One less competitor ,less competition, equals higher cost possibly less service	Senior
59	Svetlana	I am concerned about the situation when less competitors creates more expensive and worse serves. I am Rogers client for 5 years now. Before it was home internet and wireless, now it's just wireless. Their coverage, service and customer service aren't getting better with the time but quite opposite and definitely getting more and more expensive. And what really frustrating is their website and apps are not working very well, often out of working stage. Lately I had to call 5 times in 2 weeks to resolve the issue with my plan. Each time call lasted 1-2 hours with no result. Looks like they don't care much about customers and their services just about selling.	Newcomer

60	Judith	Senior, on fixed income not indexed. Pension started in 2007. I can no longer afford Rogers and have switched to Tek Savvy. I am able to choose my package, not dictated what I can or cannot choose to watch. The flexibility to choose is a money saver and I don't have programs that are never selected. I also have the ability to discontinue and restart any package I choose, e.g. Sports. In winter the NHL, curling etc. I cancel for the summer and restart in the fall. I have no power to make my own selections. Rogers is too expensive. I have reduced my estimated expenses by at least $100.00 per month. The Big 3 Canadian telecom companies, (Bell, Rogers and Telus) own 90% of the market and charge higher prices due to a lack of competition. The minimum monthly price for a smartphone plan that includes 20GB is THE HIGHEST among 51 European, American, Asia Pacific, Middle East and African countries. Consumers in Canada pay 7X more every month than consumers in France for 20GB	Senior
61	MEHDHE	The more competition we have between telecom companies the better services we get and the price becomes cheaper. I don't want these telecom companies merging and we have ZERO diversity as far as our choices go. I can't support centralization of our communication infrastructure. I am genuinely afraid we are going to get subpar services, higher bills and slow slow internet.
62	L	We must stop this buy out! The big 3 are going to continue to get even bigger unless we stop them. They have way too much control of the market already as it is. The Internet and cell phones have become necessary in this day and age but they have to be more affordable.
63	Leo	I am afraid that I will be unable to afford having internet service when food prices and other things going up. Please don't let this deal pass.
64	Luke	Canada already lacks options when it comes to telecommunications providers. The so-called big three of Rogers, Telus, and Bell simply mirror each others' plans and pricing, without any meaningful competition. What Canada needs is additional providers, not fewer.
65	N	I'm disabled and live on a fixed monthly income. Before the onset of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, I was mostly housebound due to constant pain from my various illnesses; the pandemic resulted in me being even more isolated than I already was because many of my ailments are autoimmune. The Internet is my only connection to the outside world: all of my activities — education, entertainment, socialising, shopping — are done online. The financial cost of that connection is fairly high: it's my largest bill after my rent (which takes up half my monthly disability income on its own) and doesn't take into account the cost of maintaining the necessary computer hardware for it. Should the Rogers-Shaw merger go through, there will be very little, if anything, to stop them from inflating the prices even further, and I'll very likely lose my only connection to what family I have left, never mind the rest of the world. Through actions such as keeping costs high and product/service quality low, Rogers and Shaw have already demonstrated they don't care about people like me. I hope whoever's reading this will.	Low-income,Disabled
66	Sharon	Rogers keep changing cable pkgs to benefit them solely, it's not to benefit the customers. They don't care one iota anymore about long time customers (I'm talking those that have been customers since Rogers booted Shaw out of the GTA & possibly the rest of Ontario. They stopped offering a loyalty discount to long time customers a few years ago, & are even dropping some bundling discounts for using 3 of their services. Their website to far too difficult to navigate, especially for seniors.	Senior
67	Ronan	Since Shaw bought out Wind Mobile in 2016, they have reduced the data in my $30 per month plan by 90% (5 GB to 0.5 GB) and locked similarly affordable plans behind hardware purchases and activations of new lines. If Rogers were to buy out Shaw, I would see even less affordable plans with little improvement to my day to day usage that Shaw wouldn't be able to deliver as an Independent operator. The experience of the US should be a giant warning sign to Canadians of the flaws of having a handful of nationwide companies operating as an oligopoly and raising prices while lowering customer service standards. With living expenses rising day by day for ordinary Canadians, the merger of two of Canada's largest telcos could not come at a worse time. Despite any narrative that Shaw and Rogers might manufacture to support their merger, history shows that consumers will see higher prices for less service and lower quality. The Competition Bureau has a chance to stop this degradation of Canadian data plans by stopping the proposed merger of Shaw with the dysfunctional Rogers, which is in the middle of a court battle for ownership of the Rogers company. 68	Jean-Charles	It's enough ! The CRTC is sleeping with the big telcoms and does not fill its mandate to promote a healthy competition and stand for the consumers. That was evident when it ignored it's own precept that the new frequency band was specifically for startups and turned a blind eye when the smaller players got bullied. Eventually, the big telcoms got the new frequencies, which gave them an even bigger advantage and now, we will never see new players or startups set foot in Canada. The others will be slowly devoured and assimilated until this oligopoly turns into a monopoly. Save Canada a few bucks and disband this joke that is the CRTC. It makes me sick.
69	Delores	We need more competition not less if Rogers takes over Shaw the chance of real competition for internet and cell service will be greatly reduced.	Senior,Rural/remote

73	Fred	This is an anti-competitive action. If this happens western Canada will have a monopoly instead of a cartel; neither of which encourages or allows for the market competition that makes capitalism work. (Don't confuse different names for different marketing schemes for actual independent participants in the marketplace; they're all owned by either Shaw, Rogers, or Bell.) If this is what Canadians want, then a crown corporation should take over this essential utility. If that is unpalatable, then institute an annual merger surtax large enough to make this unprofitable; just like pro sports that require fans to pay a license fee that allows them to then purchase a season ticket. 74	Marcelina	Hello, our family uses SHAW for our home Internet and cell phone needs. This is our third provider (after leaving Telus and Freedom) in an attempt to lower our telecom bills. There is so little competition in Canada that our bills keep increasing year after year. PM Trudeau promised to lower these bills and hasn't taken any action. Let's start by blocking mergers like this one that would further decrease competition and consumer choice. Thank you.
75	Blaine	If we keep letting competition get eroded from society, then what good is having choices to choose a different provider!! We WONT.. these conquering of companies eating competition away from the everyday citizens will not end well.. we cannot allow such practices to keep going on, enough already..
76	Caitlin	Access to telecommunication/internet has become a necessity of modern life, needed just like food, water, and shelter. We must keep this necessity affordable for the welfare all Canadians.
77	Suleman	I currently have 4 cell phones and internet. Having 5 services with one provider, I am in a stronger position to negotiate with current providers. If Rogers take over freedom mobile, Rogers will monopolize and charge whatever they want to and there will be one less service provider to negotiate with. Rogers already owns Fido, Chatr on top of its own brand. In order to have cheaper and reliable essential services like cell phones and internet, I strongly oppose Rogers taking over Freedom Mobile.

78	Jesse	The Rogers-Shaw buyout must not be allowed to proceed - this will further consolidate the monopoly in Big Telecom and put all Canadians at risk. Internet and cell phone service have quickly become essential to the day-to-day life of most Canadians, and this will prevent them from getting the service they need at an affordable price. Canadians already pay some of the highest prices in the WORLD for cell phone service and internet. The Competition Bureau and the federal government have a responsibility to block this nightmare buyout. We cannot afford even fewer providers in the marketplace - many of us already struggle with our cell phone bills and home internet bills, and with more people working from home than ever before, we need affordable internet to perform our jobs. Please do the right thing and block the Rogers-Shaw buyout!

84	Marlene	We need competitive prices, not less and that won't happen if this happens.	Low-income,Senior, Rural/remote
85	Sean	It is atrocious that the Federal and other governments have not enforced competition in the telecom sector and this monopoly merger move makes it worse. It is too expensive for me in an urban area and will kill internet in rural ones. We must expand competition and access and we should see a public default ISP service. Rogers current mismanagement turmoil, involves the Mayor of Toronto. But the City criticizes the merger of all telecoms and corporate concentration anti competition. So another conflict of interest. We need relief and public oversights. Cancel this merger.
86	Elizabeth	We're a first world country in a world where telecommunications has become a standard of living essential. Yet we pay a premium for these essential services, most times at a rate comparable to a far higher income bracket than the average citizen actually earns.	Low-income
87	Jayd	We already have the highest data rates and this would cause even less competition.	Rural/remote
88	G	Glad I left Rogers as they kept upping my cell phone cost, limiting services. Shaw does the same thing. Might have to change my TV provider.	Senior,Disabled
89	Wayne	Why are corporations allowed to monopolize? Are we returning to the old days of Bell setting and dictating prices. Isn't that why we stopped letting corporations become to big. Do I need to rethink my vote next election? Stop letting corporations divide society into classes of have and have nots. Sincerely frustrated, Wayne Wallace
90	Andrew	I switched to Shaw from Rogers because I had too many problems. I will be cancelling my service altogether if this goes through.	Low-income, Rural/remote,Disabled
91	Clayton	We need more competition in Canada not less.
92	RICHARD	Simply put, not less!	Low-income
93	Dr. C. Ralph	I'm fed up with the greed of these people and the complete failure of the CRTC to protect me from such avarice.	Senior
94	Mary	It was my understanding that the government promised affordable internet for everyone? Allowing Rogers to buy out Shaw gives Rogers the monopoly to control and to make this service unaffordable to lower income persons.	Low-income,Senior
95	Mark	I had a contract with Rogers for internet. They raised the fees without reason or consultation until they were more than double the agreed upon price. This is common practice for Rogers, so I switched to TechSavvy, only to discover that the government had made a crony capitalist deal with Roger and Bell to screw all third party providers. So, please don't reward these crony capitalists with extra money and power. We need anti-trust legislation in Canada, not pro-monopoly legislation. Rogers already needs to be broken up.	Senior
96	Alice Marlene	When a company has a monopoly it can behave like a dictator and charge whatever they want. We need competition in businesses.	Senior
97	Mike	Enough is enough!!!! I can't afford any increases in any expenses to live anymore! Why is our government so incompetent?? Canada is the most expensive for telecommunications with no competition where it has become a monopoly and only in the interest of gaining capital!!!! I hate living in Canada and am looking into moving out of North America!!!! I want to be able to live my life instead of being a slave to the Federal and Provincial governments!!!! 98	william	This is a decision that affects every cell phone user in this country. Providing the user the most affordable options should be the primary reason for making any decision that could adversely hurt them. Please consider the consumer and not the wealthy providers before allowing this merger to move forward.	Senior
99	Jim	I have a cell phone plan in Italy with Windtre for the equivalent of $21 a month. This plan 70 gigs of data, 5.5 gigs of roaming data, unlimited minutes and 300 minutes for International calls. My internet plan is with Very Mobile and it includes 100 gigs a month data for $12 a month. In short, the costs of these services in Canada is exorbitant as a result of a lack of competition and a CRTC which thinks it exists to protect the existing telcom companies	Senior
100	Tim	The internet situation in Canada is getting ridiculous. COVID times really showed just how ridiculous. We needed better internet in order for everyone to work from our low income home. Video conferences were needed on multiple fronts. In order to get a half decent upload speed, we have to get a plan with a really high download speed for a higher price. At our location, we are at the end of the consumer phone line, so DSL internet is basically useless to us since there is no Fibre to the home. We rely solely on cable. What will we do when there is only a single cable internet provider? We're already on a reseller but they're they're forced to play along the big tech company models since they use their lines. We literally had to give up our home phone plan (which was about $100 a month itself for the basic of basic services, completely insane) in order to get internet that's at least near the global standard. It's disheartening to see how the rest of the modern world is revolving around internet so much, with decent speed vs. price structures, while Canada seem to be going the opposite direction, with some of the highest prices for what the received service is. Heck, it almost seems like the competition we have in the internet/phone market is already not having an effect. I can only imagine how much worse it's going to get them the monopolies becomes even bigger monopolies	Low-income
